

AS SEEN IN MARCH 2012

BUYING GUIDE

- 89 Martin Ray 2009 Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon (Sonoma Mountain). Dry and tannic in youth, this Cabernet shows a cool-climate influence in the earthiness and minerality that frame the black currant and oak flavors. It's a good wine, with a good structure. Give it a few hours of decanting and drink soon. —S.H.
abv: 14.2% Price: $45

2009 Martin Ray Sonoma Mountain Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon

Female judges: “The nose opens with aromas of a cranberry bog and wet leaves...a fall day on Cape Cod and continues to evolve with toast and rye notes. All of the aromas replicate on the palate with added flavors of blackberry jam and apple butter. This baby makes you pucker with the significant tannin and acidity on the long finish. A wine to ponder.”

Male judges: “Cherry, black currant, mint, sweet spice, and wood aromas open to a complex mélange of flavors with dark fruit, earth, and brown baking spices through the late palate. What makes this wine really appealing is the balance and structure.”

– Affairs of the Vine, 2011 Cabernet Shootout

2007 Martin Ray
Sonoma Mountain Reserve
Cabernet Sauvignon

GOLD MEDAL

2010 Sonoma County Harvest Fair

2006 Martin Ray Sonoma Mountain Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon

90 POINTS

“This is a very rich, dry and concentrated Cabernet, but it’s also very tannic. The blackberry, blueberry, cherry and currant flavors are wrapped into tight, hard tannins. Should develop in the bottle over the next six years, but it will always be somewhat tannic. Give it a good decant before serving.”

– S.H. Wine Enthusiast, September 2010 issue